

Wedding Bells Are Ringing

Creative Custom Ceremonies For All Occasions

'Guest Participation of Vows'

And now, <Bride> and <Groom> have a wedding gift to give all of you gathered here today. As they speak of their feelings for one another, they'd like to give you the chance to experience the same affirmation of love. Because love is alive, it blossoms when shared with others.

They ask you to think of anyone to whom you would like to say, "I love you." Whether a spouse, sibling, child, parent or friend. Close your eyes and see the place within. Create a picture of that person in your minds' eye and speak to that picture. Grasp that person's hand as <Bride> and <Groom> each grasp theirs and silently repeat after me:

(Bride and Groom repeat out loud to each other simultaneously)

I love you and respect you.

I appreciate the gift of your love.

Knowing you has enriched my life beyond measure.

You make my life complete.

Now say good-bye to that person and wish them well, while we celebrate with <Bride> and <Groom> and bless their good fortune.
